LAND
AHOY!

J. Jones, TRUE-BLUE FRIEND!

Jitterbuck Jones squirmed uncomfortably. "I can't do a thing like that, Angelpuss!" he objected. "Not to Cookie! He's my best friend!"

"That's exactly why you should do it!" Angelpuss answered. "It's for his own good . . . and mine!"

Jit could find no answer for this. Angel had come to him with a sob in her voice and told him that Cookie was becoming a very inattentive escort these days. "He's too sure of me," she had explained. "What he needs is someone to be jealous of, and that someone is you!"

"What . . . what do you want me to do?" Jit asked.

"Oh, just make a date with me for tonight," Angel said. "We'll go to the movies, and won't Cookie be surprised when he comes around and I'm out with you?"

"Yeah," Jit moaned. He still didn't care for the idea. Still, if it was for Cookie's own good and for Angelpuss's welfare, how could he stand in the way? "Okay," he agreed miserably, "I'll pick you up at seven."

At six-thirty that night, just as Jit was trying to make his hair stay flat, a phone call came . . . from Cookie. Jit had never heard Cookie so angry before. "Call yerself a friend, huh!" Cookie's voice was bitter. "I hear you have a date with my girl-friend an' I demand that you break it! Otherwise, you will be known as Jitterbuck Jones, my former friend!"

Jit gulped. His pal, his chum, his closest buddy, talking to him like that! For a moment, he wanted to explain to Cookie that the whole thing was just a ruse, but then he remembered his promise to Angelpuss. "This is for his own good," he thought. To Cookie, he said with as much firmness as he could muster. "Sorry, old man! After all, Angelpuss agreed to go out with me!"

There was a click at the other end and then . . . silence! "Aw, he'll get over it," Jit consoled himself as he walked unhappily towards Angel's house. "After he gets over bein' jealous!"

As he walked up the front steps, however, Jit was startled to find two accusing faces turned on him.

"Well!" Angel's indignant voice was icy. "Cookie tells me you refused to break our date tonight . . . and you know Cookie and I are a twosome!"

"Boy, what a pal!" Cookie said scornfully, sneering at Jitterbuck.

"But, Angelpuss," Jit's tone was filled with disbelief, "you said you wanted Cookie to be . . ."

"Never mind what I said!" Angel interrupted him quickly. "The point is that Cookie asked me for a date tonight, after I spoke to you! And if you had any courtesy, you'd understand!"

"I never thought you'd turn on me like this," Cookie offered sadly.

"But . . . but . . ." Jit could get no further. Here, Cookie was sore at him for making a date with his girl friend. But Angel had asked him for the date. And she was sore because he wouldn't break it, although she had made him promise . . .

"It's too much for me!" Jit cried, hitting himself on the forehead to clear his brain. "I've gotta figure this out in peace an' quiet!"

Stumbling down the front steps, he headed for home, where he sat for one hour with an ice-bag on his head, thinking. At the end of the hour, Jit came to a definite conclusion. "I guess the guy in the middle never knows what hit him!" he said.

CLOUD over COOKIE

The Soda Jerkerie was not its usual self that afternoon. Instead of laughter, gloom filled the ice cream joint . . . deep, dark gloom! Crowded around a table, Angelpuss, Cookie, Jit and Zoot held conference.

"Harelip High needs a bigger stadium an' a bigger ballfield!" Jit said solemnly. "Yessir! A bigger stadium an' a bigger ballfield!"

"Oh, Jit!" Angelpuss was impatient. "That's what we've been saying for weeks! But where are we going to get them? That's the question!"

"From your old man. that's where!" Zoot smacked the table-top so hard that they all jumped. "He owns the lot right near our ballfield, doesn't he, Angel? An' he oughta be willin' ta kick in some dough for the stadium! We could call it Witherspoon Stadium! Howzzat?"

"Who's gonna make him do it?" Cookie demanded.

"You! Cookie O'Toole!" Zoot's answer was prompt. "You're Angel's boyfriend, which it could happen ta me an' I wouldn't be sore! He's bound ta listen ta you! I move we volunteer Cookie O'Toole ta convince Mr. Witherspoon ta give us a bigger stadium an' ballfield!"

It was shortly before five o'clock that afternoon, when Cookie, trembling like a leaf in a high wind, headed for the imposing offices of the Witherspoon Enterprises. He had begged, he had pleaded to be excused from this ordeal, but Zoot had shamed him into it, with loud cries of "Where's yer school spirit? and "Don't be selfish!"

It had taken Cookie almost two hours to prepare a speech, explaining the stadium problem to Mr. Witherspoon. As he was ushered into the great man's office, he rehearsed it quickly and silently. At the most telling point, he found himself standing in front of Mr. Witherspoon's desk, with Mr. Witherspoon himself glaring over a heap of important-looking papers.

Cookie cleared his throat. "Mr.

Witherspoon," he began. "we, the student body of Harelip High . . ." He got no further.

Mr. Witherspoon emitted an anguished shriek. "Five o'clock, and already my messenger boy has gone home!" he wailed. "I've got to get this delivered to Mr. Gormer today! It means a big contract for the firm! You!" he shouted at Cookie. "You will deliver these quotations! Hurry, hurry, hurry, you've got to get there before five-thirty!"

Dazed and bewildered, Cookie found himself saying, "But. Mr. Witherspoon, we, the student body of Harelip High . . ." to empty air. Someone had poked a large manila folder under his arm, someone else had hustled him to an elevator with plenty of vigor, and someone else (probably Mr. Witherspoon) had shouted after him, "Remember, it's urgent! It's a crucial order! I must have it!"

At Mr. Gormer's office, things seemed to be just a hectic. Mr. Gormer, a red-faced gentleman with a furious temper, snatched the envelope from Cookie with a snarl. "About time!" he rasped, glancing down a column of figures. "What's this? Old Witherspoon's quotations? Ridiculous! That man's a robber! A highwayman! A pickpocket! His prices are impossible!"

As Cookie heard these words, his temper began to rise. How could this man talk that way about the father of the girl he loved, the employer of his own dad, the man who was, no doubt, about to give Harelip High a bigger stadium and a bigger ballfield?

"Mr. Witherspoon is not a robber!" he shouted, right at Mr. Gormer. "You have no right ta talk like that about Mr. Witherspoon! You oughta be ashamed of yerself!"

Mr. Gormer turned redder than ever and began to splutter. "Get out!" he yelled. "Tell Witherspoon I'm through doing business with him or his impertinent messengers! Get out!"

By the time Cookie got back to Mr. Witherspoon's office, he was more tired and confused than ever. Wasn't there something about a stadium and a ball-field he was supposed to discuss? If only Mr. Witherspoon would listen! But Mr. Witherspoon was waiting for him with blood in his eyes!

"So!" he snarled at Cookie. "You had to talk back to Gormer! Don't try to explain. I know all about it! He called me after you left . . . said he'd never do business with me again! You had insulted him . . . you . . . you little whippersnapper! Now, young man, I never want to see you again, either here or in my home! Leave now, before I really get angry!"

Cookie left the office in a daze. How did it happen? What had he done that was so awful? What a mess he was in! Mr. Witherspoon hated him! Angelpuss would hate him, because her father did! His own pop would be sore, because Mr. Witherspoon was his boss. Then mom would get sore, too! And the kids at school would be hoppin', on account of no stadium! Except Zoot. Zoot would be glad because he was in the doghouse, all around!

"There's only one thing ta do an' I'm gonna do it!" Cookie told Jit mournfully, as they sat on the back porch together, later that night. "Skip town! I'll go someplace where I'm not known an' start all over again!"

There were tears in Jit's eyes as he tried to persuade his buddy to remain and face the music. But Cookie was adamant. "Tomorra mornin'!" he announced bleakly. "I'll go out of everybody's life, quietly!"

It was indeed early in the morning when Cookie, stony-faced and dry-eyed, stole onto the train that headed for parts unknown. Gravely, he selected a seat near an old, kind-faced gentleman, and settled down to think. As the train picked up speed, Cookie could hear the words in his head, the words that went with the chugging of the train. "Angelpuss . . . Angelpuss . . . mom . . . mom . . . pop . . . Angelpuss . . ." Suddenly, he sniffed loudly and rubbed his eyes with his knuckles.

The old gentleman looked at him thoughtfully. "As man to man," he said, "is there anything I can do for you?" Cookie looked at him, and in one torrent of confidence, the entire story came pouring out . . . stadium, ballfield, Mr. Witherspoon, everything!

The old gentleman said nothing to Cookie. He listened silently, and when the story was over, he excused himself and went to find a trainman. "I want to send a telegram," he said.

As the train pulled into the next station, Cookie was shocked to find that two men were approaching him, grim and determined. "You're under arrest, Cookie O'Toole," they said. The rest was hysterical confusion. The jouncing ride back home, the fears, the worries, the shame, and, at the end of it all . . . a hero's welcome!

Everyone was there! The school band played, Angelpuss kissed him, Mr. Witherspoon pumped his hand up and down, mom cried with pride and pop kept saying, "That's my boy!" Cookie could not make it out, until long after the shouting had died down and the mysterious old gentleman on the train had somehow reappeared. He was the key to the mystery!

"A fine, loyal lad with fire and spirit!" he had decided, after hearing Cookie's story. "I'll give this Witherspoon a contract myself! But only on condition that the school get a bigger stadium and ballfield!"

There was only one gloomy face on view that day. Zoot! He looked enviously at Cookie, who was surrounded by friends and admirers. "Aah," he sighed, "the lucky stiff! He always winds up on top!"

But everyone else thought Cookie deserved it!

HOW YOU CAN BE A WINNER AT ANYTHING YOU TACKLE WITH PROGRESSIVE POWER

Enjoy My "Progressive Power" Strength Secrets!
Give me 10 Easy Minutes a Day — Without Strain!

I'll teach you the "Progressive Power Method" through which I rebuilt myself from a physical wreck the doctors condemned to die at 15, to the holder of more strength records than any other living athlete or teacher! "Progressive Power" has proven its ability to build the strongest, handsomest man in the world. And I stand ready to show you on a money back basis — that no matter how flabby or puny you are I can do the same for you right in your own home. Let me prove I can add inches to your arms, broaden your shoulders, give you a man-sized chest, powerful legs and a Rock-like back — in fact, power pack your whole body so quickly it will amaze you! Yes, I'll jam you with power and self-confidence to master any situation—to win popularity—and to get ahead on the job! Through my proven secrets I bring to life new power in you inside and out, until YOU are fully satisfied you are the man you want to be.

Just a Few of the Records of George F. Jowett

whom experts call the "Champion of Champions"

- World's welter weight wrestling champion at 17
- World's weight lifting champion at 19
- Reputed to have the strongest arms in the world.
- Four times winner of the world's most perfectly developed body . . . plus many, many other world records!
